LINER HOLDS UP NIGHT PRACTISE OF FORT RUGER

New Shot-Correction System
Used for First Time on Oahu; Good Results

Because the Matson liner Lurline passed through the field of danger last night when the 12-inch mortars of Fort Ruger were firing during night target practise, it was necessary to suspend firing for half an hour.

The liner left Honolulu harbor and steamed to sea, right through the center of the firing zone, disregarding warning published in both newspapers here and printed notices posted in prominent places for the last two weeks. In order to prevent possible damage to the steamer the fort ceased firing until the Lurline had passed out of the field of danger, headed for Kaula and Kaaupali, Maui.

Last night a firing was featured by the initial use of a system of shot correction devised by Capt. Carr W. Waller, commander of Battery Harlow, the 12-inch mortars of the fort.

By Capt. Waller's method corrections for the fall of shots were made after each salvo. Heretofore there have been no corrections made during mortar night practise. This is believed to be the first time in these islands that fire correction has been possible at night and the results plainly indicated the value of the new system.

Trial shots were fired at 8 o'clock last evening, two into the fifth and two into the sixth zones of fire, to obtain data for use in the record practise after dark.

Starting at 8 o'clock, record practise was commenced. Many spectators watched the firing from points of vantage along the beach from the harbor entrance to Waikiki. Searchlight batteries of Forts Ruger and De Russy played on the target continuously as it was towed through the different zones of fire by the U. S. tug of war Navajo, which sent up rockets to indicate her changes in course from one zone to another when directed to alter her direction.

Lieut.-Col. W. E. Ellis, commander of Fort Ruger, was in general charge, with Capt. Frederick W. Phisterer, who is daily expecting his promotion to a majority and who leaves on the September transport, acting as fire commander. Capt. Waller was battery commander.

The average range at which the 32 record shots were fired was 6000 yards. Apparently very satisfactory results were obtained.

COLLEGE MEN HAVING MILITARY TRAINING MAY JOIN RESERVES

Civilians who have completed courses in military training at any educational institution where an officer of the army was detailed as professor of military science and tactics, are eligible for appointment to the officers' reserve corps, after completing additional training, says a section of the national defense act.

The act provides that eligible civilians can be appointed temporary additional second lieutenant of the regular army in peace times for purposes of instruction, appointments not to exceed six months, at a salary of $100 a month.

Members of the reserve corps in the Hawaiian Department will soon take the necessary physical examination required by the new law.

REPORT OF CHANGE IN MANAGEMENT DENIED

A street rumor that he had resigned from the bitulthic company was denied by J. A. Gilman, president and manager of the concern, this morning. "I may take a trip to the mainland within a month or two," he said. "That probably started the rumor."

J. A. Pratt, who succeeded Frank M. Shalloe as special agent of the Warren Brothers Company here, is to be here temporarily and did not come to take the place of manager, Gilman says. The rumor named Pratt as Gilman's successor.

The Warren Brothers Company, a mainland corporation, controls the patents on bitulthic.

Fort Shafter Notes

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
FORT SHAFTER, Aug. 25.—The following changes resulting from recent orders will take place in the organization of L. Company: Max R. Grogan, Edward Looney and Elmer Rosseau were made sergeants, and these men were advanced to the grade of corporal: Robert E. Lee, Arthur Studard, and William G. Palms.

The following statement is made by an authority in New York, that of the 1500 vacancies for second lieutenant's rank in the army available for enlisted men and civilians, there have been but 800 applicants. This statement, if accurate, should inspire the ambition of the enlisted men of Fort Shafter.

Leon F. Paliadee, with the grade of sergeant, has been placed in charge of the regimental printing office and will attend to the printing of the official data in the new printing room under the stairway, first floor, headquarters building.

The Scientific Monthly, August, 1916, page 154, in an article entitled "War Selection in the Philippines," has a splendid reference to the work of the late 1st Lieut. Edward C. Bolton among the Bagobos, in the Philippines; and the article, in part, states: "Lieut. Bolton, one of the men most conspicuous in devotion to the interest of the people under his charge whom I have ever met."

The article was written by Dr. Edwin Bingham Copeland of the University of the Philippines, Los Baños, Luzon, and the writer refers to Lieut. Bolton, who was killed in action June 8, 1906, while serving on the Island of Mindanao. Lieut. Bolton served the 23rd Infantry as corporal and sergeant, and was commissioned and served in the 17th Infantry as second and first lieutenant until his heroic death. The older officers and soldiers of the 2nd well remember him, and it is pleasing to hear of this timely recognition of his character and able work.

RESIGNATION OF COL. BALDWIN IS EXPECTED SOON

Maui National Guard Officers
Will Probably Run Again
for Senate

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
WAILUKU, Maui, Aug. 24.—Because Col. H. A. Baldwin will probably be a candidate for reelection to succeed himself as a member of the senate, in next fall's elections, he will be compelled to drop his commission as commander of the 3d Infantry, N. G. H. This is in accordance with what has come to be accepted as the requirement of the Organic Act, which prohibits a member of the territorial legislature from being "appointed or elected to any office of the Territory of Hawaii."

Maj. Harry B. Penhallow, who does not intend to run for reelection, will continue to hold his commission.

The matter, which came up some time ago, was brought to a head last week through the resignation of Capt. H. L. Holstein of Kohala, who, acting upon private advice from Washington, insisted on getting out of the guard on account of the fact that he will again be a candidate to the legislature. Gen. Sam Johnson states that an effort will be made to have the Organic Act amended by Congress so as to remove the technical disability.
